RELEASE OF LIABILITY, ASSUMPTION OF RISK, AND INDEMNIFICATION
AGREEMENT

This document affects your legal rights: Read it carefully before signing!

Rocket experimentation involves many potential hazards. Persons attending rocket firings will be in the proximity of hazardous chemicals, pyrotechnic devices, electrical equipment, tools, and machinery. The building and testing of rockets always presents risk of fire, explosion, thermal/chemical burns, fragment impact, or electrical shock, to name a few. The danger associated with these activities is such that testing must often be conducted at a remote location. This limits access to medical assistance that would normally be available within city limits. In addition, the time required for such assistance to arrive on scene might be considerably longer than normal, or an injured person might need to be transported to the nearest medical facility directly by others on scene. Participants must also be aware that the actions of others attending these firings might cause injury to those in the area. Risk of injury or death exists when engaged in rocket fabrication, test operations, launching, and observing. The undersigned agrees that they have been apprised and informed of risks attendant to participation in Reaction Research Society, Inc. activities. In consideration of your participation, the undersigned grants and accords the following full and complete WAIVER OF RIGHTS, RELEASE OF LIABILITY, INDEMNIFICATION, ASSUMPTION OF RISK, HOLD HARMLESS AGREEMENT to the Reaction Research Society, Inc.
